

Zouerate will soon have a new airport, which will be capable of supporting the country's economic development and the City's expansion.

"The Zouerate airport construction project will help bring the country's infrastructure up to standard" says SNIM's CEO.

The new airport will be equipped with all the infrastructure essential for a modern airport which meets international standards (a runway, a terminal, technical buildings, a control tower, a perimeter fence, and a runway lighting system).

It will also have the communications and security equipment required for air navigation. The total cost of this project is MRO 3 billion and the planned works will be completed in 12 months.